

Catholic schools prepare students for the future

Then ...

Archive photo

Oldenburg Franciscan Sister Clarissa Dillhoff helps kindergarten students with a coloring project in this Archive photo from August 1980 on the first day of classes at St. Paul School in New Alsace.

Archive photo

Father Albert Ajamie, pastor of Holy Angels Parish in Indianapolis from 1964 until 1970, welcomes students to Holy Angels School in this undated Archive photo.

Archive photo

Holy Cross School students pose for a group picture in 1949 with Father Ambrose Sullivan, the pastor, in the Kelley Gymnasium to commemorate their first Communion. Father Sullivan was the pastor of Holy Cross Parish from 1941 until 1952.

Now ...

File photo by Mary Ann Wyand

St. Lawrence School eighth-grader Joe Shirey of Indianapolis celebrates after answering a math question correctly on Aug. 18, 2008, using the Indianapolis North Deanery grade school's new SMART Board computer technology. Betty Popp, the principal, said this interactive learning tool helps teachers present high-impact lessons, connect with the students through technology and bring learning to life.

File photo by Mary Ann Wyand

St. Simon School kindergartners and their teachers pose for a class picture on April 14, 2004, with Army Capt. Ed Lupomech of Indianapolis, who was their pen pal during his tour of duty in Iraq. He visited the classroom to thank the children for their prayers, letters and drawings, and showed the students his Bronze Star and Purple Heart earned for courageous service in wartime.

File photo by Mary Ann Wyand

St. Monica School kindergartner Elizabeth Bauserman of Indianapolis practices using a walker during the Indianapolis West Deanery grade school's annual Disability Awareness Day on Nov. 19, 2003. Students learn about the challenges that people with disabilities face in daily life.

File photo by Mary Ann Wyand

St. Rose of Lima sixth-grader William Roush of Franklin works with science teacher Amber Hayes on a chemistry experiment with new laboratory equipment on Jan. 18, 2007.

File photo by Mary Ann Wyand

St. Luke School eighth-grade students carry John Sontag, portraying Jesus, to the tomb during a Passion play on Good Friday, April 6, 2007, at St. Luke the Evangelist Church in Indianapolis. Eighth-grader Allison Paras, at right, who portrayed Mary, cries below the cross.